Client's Research Objectives

Current objective second segment of the project:

Goal 1

Primary focus is on verifying Thomas Hamilton connection to the Cape, and then the linkage to the Mayflower. That would be a big deal.

Goal 2

Second is the James Carter original deed in Blue Hill. You had sent a reference to one but, while I haven't seen the underlying deed, I wondered if that was of him selling his prior home. He would have bought (or been granted) land in Blue Hill in 1770 or 1771.

Objective from the first segment of this project, findings delivered:

- confirming link to Deacon John Dunham in Plymouth

✓ see if you can figure out where Thomas Hamilton of Digby, Novia Scotia came from

 $\checkmark$  seeing if there is any link to Alexander Hamilton - both branches came from the same area of Scotland so suspect there is a link somewhere

- James Carter arrived in Blue Hill, ME in 1770 or 1771 - would love to confirm his original land grant in Blue Hill Neck, me - I have not been able to find it"

Project Background

I have a pretty built out ancestry tree. I also have it at www.hamdun.org/tree but don't focus there yet. I've done more work since then on ancestry so would want to refresh the tree on the site. Let me know if you have a preference in terms of how you access a tree.

Restrictions or Limitations

Loss of a New England town's vital records and land grant papers occurred regularly through the decades, catastrophically destroyed by war, wildfire, flooding or carelessness; these challenges make our task a little more difficult and time consuming. Some towns tried to recreate these family groups by deposition, while many records never made it any further than the family bible. As with any genealogical research, it is not possible to guarantee results. The process is evidence driven; proof reveals itself in town and state vital records, census histories, court records, probate files, deeds and other scholarly works.

Report of Findings

Goal 1

"Primary focus is on verifying Thomas Hamilton connection to the Cape, and then the linkage to the Mayflower. That would be a big deal."

Research in the first segment of this project established that Thomas Hamilton (1739-) emigrated to Barrington on the southwestern tip of Nova Scotia in 1761-2 with other first settlers from Chatham and Harwich on Cape Cod, Massachusetts; and that Thomas (Thomas, Mary, <sup>Mary, Giles, Stephen)</sup> is a proven Mayflower descendant (Exhibit A, B, C.1-C.4, D1-2, E). Research in this location and this time period is difficult. Multiple disaster assaulted the area for generations. Some probate records survived the 1827 burning of the Barnstable County Court House and Chatham's were lost to a local fire. Revolutionary Wars records are long been missing. (Exhibit C.2)

While working to confirm a birth record for the weakest generation; Archibald, to his father Thomas (Exhibit B) and mother Ruhama Doane, it became necessary to look generations back for additional published genealogies or town histories that could reveal this information. We know that Archibald was in Digby, Nova Scotia with his father <sup>1</sup> Sgt. Daniel Hamilton (1669-1738) and his brother Thomas (1670) (Exhibit A) were first exposed to the Nova Scotia wilds during the battle of Port Royal in 1690<sup>2</sup>. Inspired by the opportunities already familiar to earlier generations of Hamilton seaman regarding new land, wealth and estates of their own, some of them relocated to Digby probably well before the 1759 Charles Lawrence Proclamation expelling the native Acadians in favor of settling their land by New England planters. From the brief article Early Chatham Settlers <sup>3</sup> (Exhibit C-C4) in Leonard Smith's Cape Cod Collection we learn the names of Daniel's children and four wives, including his first son Lt. Thomas Hamilton (1695-1772). Daniel's grandson Thomas (1739- ) and his great-grand son Archibald (1755- ) followed, laying claim to the earliest of land grants <sup>4</sup>,<sup>5</sup>.

From the History of Digby p 38:

Mr. Thomas Hamilton, and Mr. John Dickson, natives of Granville, Nova Scotia, having wandered down the northern Bay in search of most promising location for prosecuting their fishing business, decided to become founders of British tenure at Sandy Cove. Consequently, Mr. Hamilton, with his partner and three sons, located near the shore, on farm lately owned by Mr. Thomas Crowell. The other gentleman took posses fon of one hundred acres on western side of the harbour. This occurred May 12, 1778. Although they neglected to apply immediately for Grants, Mi. Botsford, Agent for the Loyalists, recommended they be included in the second Township Grant, which was cheerfully done. Archibald, son of Thomas Hamilton, was allowed a commodious tract beside his father's liberal apportionment.

One of a few comprehensive historical collections recounting the Hamilton move from the Cape to Nova Scotia is a series of articles written in the 1920 and 30's for the Yarmouth Herald that followed up on New England Planters and Loyalist who had settled in Nova Scotia beginning in 1759. This treasure trove of information recounted details of at least 650 families; about 48,165 names and includes this client's genealogy<sup>6</sup> (Exhibit F.1-2). How Thomas (1643-), husband to Lidia Wing (1647-1710) and father of Daniel (1669-) and Thomas (1670-) seems appear from nowhere except the statement that he and his brother Daniel were born in Rhode Island (F.1) In searching the early history of the state the Hamilton family of Rhode Island <sup>7</sup> does appear almost entirely woven into the Ulster Hamiltons, descending from James Hamilton, the 1st Earl of Abercorn and fourth son of Sir George Hamilton. <sup>8</sup> (Exhibit G.1- G.7 note: specific attention should be paid to this exhibit set)

Vetting the sources given in the notes (Exhibit G.7) produced a significant amount of additional information supporting the research in the Morehead article <sup>9</sup>. About 152 written exchanges by Capt. Thomas Hamilton are on file with the UK's National Archives (Exhibit H). Discussions concern every subject from damage to the vessels during bad weather, ports, being at sea for 17 months and longer, to wages, payments, 'victuals' and other assorted stores, building cabins and Acadian Indian slaves for the kitchen. His lineage is recounted in great detail in (Exhibit I.1- I .3) in Anderson's House of Hamilton<sup>10</sup> and Johnson's Heraldry of the Hamiltons<sup>11</sup>. In Ex. I .3 we learn about Elizabeth, of whom:

Great detail is given in Hasted's County of Kent<sup>12</sup> including the fact that our Thomas's father, Sir George Hamilton fourth son of James was also the Baronet of Nova Scotia (Exhibit J.1- J.2). Hamilton's of Abercorn<sup>13</sup> in "Heraldry of the Hamiltons" by Johnson (Exhibit K) clearly defines Thomas and his five brothers, but as was the common practice, the three sisters were unnamed. We do find them back in Exhibit I. An extensive list of his commands and promotions (Exhibit L.1-L.4, see ex. L-2) do suggest a time to be in port long enough to fully stock ships and explore. Captain Thomas Hamilton (1643-1687) most likely married Lidia near Newport and fathered two boys by her. She and the boys were allowed to take the Hamilton name. Research considering Lucy Wing Hamilton Abbott would be far more difficult without the "The Owl"<sup>14</sup> a publication by the Wing Family of America (Exhibit N1-N.3) a 1991 article which thoroughly researches her family group.

Conclusion for Goal 1

Collective evidence suggests that Thomas Hamilton (1643-1687) is the son of James Hamilton, the 1st Earl of Abercorn and fourth son of Sir George Hamilton. (Ex. G.5); and that his son Sgt. Daniel Hamilton (1670-1738) is the husband of Mary Smith (1669-1708), a Mayflower Descendant of Stephen Hopkins.

James Carter arrived in Blue Hill, ME in 1770 or 1771 - would love to confirm his original land grant in Blue Hill Neck, me - I have not been able to find it"

This step of the project is foundational research only and incomplete due to time contract time restrictions. More information is available concerning these land grants, I recommend and additional block of research time to complete this goal.

Ann Clough's book Head of the Bay: Sketches and Pictures of Blue Hill, Maine 1762-1952<sup>15</sup> states that James Carter, with others, came to Blue Hill "up to the beginning of the nineteenth century" or before 1800; with the earliest settlers arriving about 1762 being listed pages 6-8.

Referring to the death of Ebenezer Hinkley on Long Island in 1776 and inquest that followed, "settlement on the south side of [Long Island] was made about twenty years later when David and James Carter, Jr., built homes near the Sand Spit, directly opposite South Blue Hill. Here James raised a family of thirteen children, and David, seven children. R. G. F. Candage <sup>16</sup> writes that they "raised their own corn and grain, cattle, sheep and swine for the use of their families, spun, wove and knit their clothing from wool of their sheep, and lived within their own resources." Still later, David Carter's son, John Pearce [Carter] (born 1799), cleared farm land, built a house and barns, and raised a family of seven children in the same area.

It is from the Historical Sketches of Bluehill Maine that we learn the Blue Hill Bay Date of Proprietors' Settlement for three Carter men; Thomas 1776, Henry 1783, and James 1781<sup>17</sup>. (Exhibit 4.1)

Hamilton Corrections

HAMILTON CORRECTIONS: In dealing with the Hamilton family of Chatham, Mass., and Barrington, N. S., in A History of Barrington Township, Edwin Crowell heaps confusion on confusion. He identifies Samuel Hamilton as a son of Thomas and Rebecca (Mayo) Hamilton of Chatham and a brother of Rebecca who married Solomon Smith of Chatham and Barrington, Jane who married Jonathan Smith, another Barrington grantee, Patience who married in Barrington Archelaus Smith, Jr., and Mary who married (1), a Young and (2), William Donaldson. While Rebecca Smith and Jane Smith were daughters of Thomas and Rebecca Hamilton (May. Desc., vol. 4, p. 200; vol. 7, p. 141; W. C. Smith, History of Chatham, Mass. (1909), p. 285), neither the second wife of William Donaldson nor Patience, wife of Archelaus Smith, Jr., was even of the same generation. Almost a half century's difference in age lies between the two sets of Hamilton sisters. It is possible that Patience Smith and the wife of William Donaldson were daughters of Thomas and Ruhama (Doane) Hamilton of Chatham and nicces of Rebecca and Jane Smith. Mary, the daughter of Thomas Hamilton and Rebecca Mayo, married Henry Saunders of Wareham, Mass. (ibid.). No where in the records of Chatham or elsewhere on the Cape Cod do we find the birth of a son Samuel to Thomas Hamilton nor is a Samuel mentioned in the latter's will (ibid.).

Samuel Hamilton who married in Chatham, 17 Feb. 1761, Miriam Kenney and removed to Barrington was born in Chatham 29 March 1738 to Daniel and Abigal Hamilton.

A further error is made in listing the children of William Hamilton, son of Samuel, who married in Argyle, N. S., 1 Jan. 1793, Patience Morton. It is said that he had: Sarah, married in 1782 Levi Nickerson [born in Chatham 10 Dec. 1759]; Lydia, married Thomas McGuire; Elizabeth, married John Garron. These women were William's contemporaries and almost certainly his sisters, not his daughters. John Garron and Thomas McGuire were disbanded soldiers who had fought for the King during the Revolution. The vital records of Argyle (in Tusket Courthouse, Yarmouth County, N. S.) show the children of William and Patience Morton Hamilton as follows: Samuel, born 25 Dec. 1794; Heman, born 16 Nov. 1796; Lydia, born 22 Nov. 1798; Deborah, born 6 July 1801; Obediah, born 24 June 1803; William, born 23 Aug. 1805; Thomas, born 21 Jan. 1807; Isaac, born 12 Feb. 1809; Martha, born 1 June 1812; Harvey, born 16 July 1815; Patience, born 8 May 1819; Myra, born 1 Oct. 1821.

The Hamilton family of Chatham and Barrington descends from Stephen Hopkins of the Mayflower through his son Gyles, also a passenger. Samuel Hamilton of Barrington is fifth in descent from Gyles and sixth from Stephen Hopkins,

PREFACE

Cape Cod families are difficult to trace. Only the probate records survived the burning of the Barnstable County Courthouse in 1827. Other disasters have affected town records. Many of Chatham's records were lost in a local fire. Yarmouth's records for the Revolutionary War period have been missing for years. With my own ancestry tracing to the founders of Chatham and including numerous other Cape Cod persons and communities it was inevitable that my search should disclose the series of panphlets published at Yarmouthport, Mass., by Charles W. Swift early in the 20th century under the series name Cape Cod Library of History and Genealogy.

Many of these pamphlets are undated; most are dated during the 1911-1914 period; two are dated in the 1940s. Two pamphlets were each numbered 22; I have designated one, arbitrarily, as 22a. Some were merely a single page; others ran as large as 40 or 50 pages. Some of the content material seems to have been published earlier in an unidentified newspaper.

The pamphlet covers were on newsprint and the internal pages on paper of a little better quality. The covers have largely turned dark brown from the sulphite content of the paper and photocopies are very difficult to make, sometimes impossible. The interiors are showing signs of deterioration.

Accumulating a set of the pamphlets proved a considerable task. About 80 were purchased in their original form. A few were purchased as photocopies from the Eastham Historical Society. Others were obtained by photocopying issues found in different libraries. Even the Library of Congress set was incomplete; I am pleased to have been able to assist in correcting that situation. The gaps are not noticed by the libraries because the pamphlets are normally catalogued as individual items.

A check of the files of the U.S. Copyright Office discloses that all of the pamphlets are in the public domain. Such copyrights as were claimed have expired and not been renewed.

Locating information presented another serious problem. A number of the pamphlets are devoid of pagination. Finding an item of information is difficult; citing its location is often virtually impossible. Using this valuable source of information meant constructing an index, which this book contains.

Securing the basic material and preparing the index have involved more than ten years. If its users find it as helpful as I do I will be pleased.

This project could never have been accomplished alone. Uncounted hours of monotonous proof-reading of the index have been contributed by Dorothy Marvelle Boyer and Norma Helen Smith; their work is deeply appreciated.

In a project of this size it is inevitable that errors have crept in. I accept responsibility for them with the hope that they are few.

Daniel Hamilton, probably son of Thomas and Lydia Hamilton of Rhode Island, Sandwich and Easthana,<sup>41</sup> horn in 1670, married at Eastham Mary, daughter of Samuel Smith, about 1693 and resided there till after the birth of their second child. By the will of her father, who died in 1697, his wife came into possession of one-half of two farms al Monomoit located at Tom's Neek, and the family removed thither. His first wife having died, he married second August 5, 1708, Sarah (Smith) Snow, widow of Joseph Snow of Eastham," and daughter of John and Hannah Smith of Eastham. His third wife was Desire Springer, widow of Edward Springer of Newport, R. L., and daughter of James Gorham of Barnstable, whom he married at Barnstable Dec. 15, 1715. His fourth wife, who survived him, was named Elizabeth, perhaps daughter of John Taylor. Serg. Hamilton, with his brother Thomas, served under Capt. John Gorham in the expedition to Canada in 1690 and received therefor a share of land at Dunbarton, N. H., in 1735.41 He was active in local affairs, being selectman three years, constable several years and holding other positions. He was styled Sergeant as carly as 1710. Through his first wife, he was interested not only in the farm at Tom's Neck, but in the Common lands and the Great Beach. Ilo died December 8, 4738, aged 68 years. Capt, Joseph Harding, eldest son of Joseph and Belliah (Cook) Harding of Eastham, born July 8, 1667, married Dinah , probably daughter of Tristram Hedges, and settled at Monomoit prior to 1693 in the southwest quarter of the town. He was selectman seven years, treasurer two years and held other local offices. He hecame lieutenant of the military company as early as $702 and captain as early as 1706, holding that position till 1715. He was prob-ably one of the first members of the church. He had interests in the Common lands and will Thomas Atkins, bought of Josephus Quason in 1797 the interest of the latter in the Quason lands in Harwich, later receiving one-sixteenth part in the division of these lands<sup>15</sup> in 1721 he took the contract to build a new parsonage for Rev. Mr. Lord, but later, after he had begun, the town cancelled the agreement and controversy ensued. He lived on the neck southeast of Cockle Cove, then called Ragged Neck, the whole of which he owned at his death. Harding's Beach, which adjoins this neck, was named for him. His wife Dinah died January 28, 1738, aged 76 years. He died early in 1745, teaving a will dated February 16, 1738-9, proved May 8, 1745. The homestead at Ragged Neck was given to his son Nehemiah. llis son Maziah had a homostead and land on each side of the road

Thomas Hamilton – Progenitor of a Colonial American family: His Ulster origins revealed using DNA

Shellee A. Morehead, PhD, CG

Cynthia L. Hamilton, Hamilton Family Researcher (Member no. 27760)

Captain Thomas Hamilton, grandson of James Hamilton, 1st Earl of Abercorn and fourth son of Sir George Hamilton of Dunnalong, County Tyrone, died May 9, 1687<sup>1</sup> and was buried in King's Chapel, Boston, Massachusetts on May 16.<sup>2</sup> He was Captain of the Kingfisher, which arrived in Boston, December 1686 bringing Sir Edmund Andros to the American Colonies as Governor General.<sup>3</sup> Also recorded in Massachusetts is 'Thomas Hambleton the son of Thomas Hamblton and lidia his wife was bourne the 17 of Febuary 1671 borne at Rohd Iland.'<sup>4</sup>

Three hundred years have passed since the documented events above took place in colonial New England. Relying on DNA evidence, historical events and traditional genealogical research, we suggest that Captain Thomas Hamilton and Thomas Hamblton, spouse of Lydia Wing above, may be one and the same person.

Identifying the origins of colonial families in New England can be troublesome when the immigrant did not stay long enough to appear in subsequent records. Lydia Wing (28 May 1647-c. 1710), daughter of Daniel Wing and Hannah Swift of Sandwich in Plymouth Colony, Massachusetts,<sup>5</sup> married Thomas Hamilton and had two sons, Daniel and Thomas.<sup>6</sup> While records exist that document Lydia Hamilton and her children in the Quaker records of Sandwich, her husband is never mentioned again after the births of their sons. Some researchers have assumed he died early. Using Y-DNA from four, direct male descendants of first son, Daniel Hamilton, we were able to match Lydia's husband, Thomas Hamilton, to Sir George Hamilton mentioned above. Sir George was also a fourth great-grandson of James Hamilton, 1st Lord Hamilton (c. 1415-c. 1479), and Mary Stewart, daughter of King James II. The fourth son of Sir George Hamilton was indeed named Thomas ?

Four Hamilton males were tested. Tests #179124, #171468, #186719 and #224330 descend directly from Daniel Hamilton of Chatham, Cape Cod, Massachusetts, as well as subsequent generations in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, through his grandson, Samuel Hamilton, born in 1738 in Chatham, Massachusetts. Samuel Hamilton was one of the New England Planters who removed to Nova Scotia in the 1760s. Samuel's well documented paternal lineage is through his father Daniel, Jr., grandfather Daniel, and great-grandparents, Thomas Hamilton and Lydia Wing.<sup>8</sup>

Results from Y-DNA tests for the descendants of Daniel Hamilton, son of Thomas and Lydia Hamilton, show these descendants belong to Haplogroup Ita4a. Each of the 37 marker tests for these four men is identical to test subject #46675, a close kinsman to the current Duke of Abercorn, and a descendant of Sir George Hamilton. The results in the 67 marker tests differ at one site (DYS 534) by only one point in 3 of the 4 cases (Tests 171924, 186719, and 224330) and by 2 points in one case (Test 171468), indicating a high probability that the subjects are related.<sup>9</sup> The shared surrame and the genealogical evidence tracing the subjects to Thomas Hamilton, husband of Lydia Wing, as well as the close Y-DNA profile to a descendant of Sir George Hamilton indicates that Thomas Hamilton is likely a son of Sir George Hamilton and related to the Abercorns.

Several other test subjects including #69486, # 82645, and #76545, have been identified as distant kinsman of Test #46675, of the Abercorn line, but their most recent common ancestor is the above James Hamilton, 1st Lord Hamilton. One subject is a thirteenth cousin twice removed, the other two are fifteenth cousins once removed of test subject #46675, respectively. The descendants of the Cape Cod Hamiltons and the current Abercorn family are more closely related, probably ninth or tenth cousins.

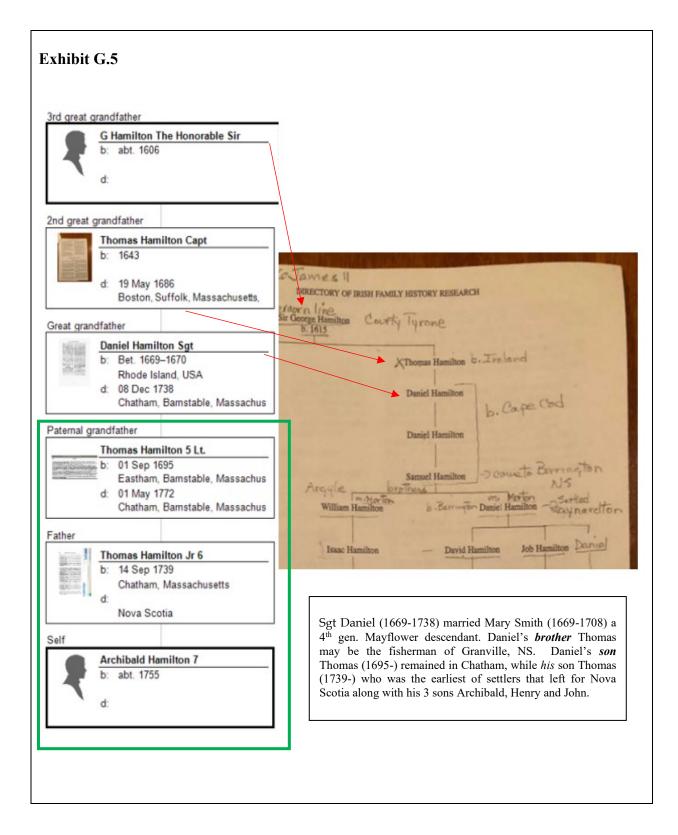

Thomas Hamilton, fourth son of Sir George Hamilton, was 'bred to the sea service,' destined for the Royal Navy, and eventually commanded a variety of ships during the 1660s, 1670s and 1680s,<sup>10</sup> This Thomas also served as a lieutenant on the Rupert in 1666, and in 1667 on the Mary during the second Anglo-Dutch war. He was appointed commander of the Deptford and transferred to the Nightingale in 1668 where he served until 4 May 1669.<sup>11</sup> Two years later he rejoined the navy and soon became Captain.<sup>12</sup> During these two years, he might have stopped in New England and married Lydia Wing, although no New England records give a naval title to Lydia's husband. Lydia's son Thomas was born on 17 February 1671 in Rhode Island.<sup>13</sup> Much of Capt. Hamilton's later career was spent patrolling the Mediterranean. No record exists of his being assigned to another ship until he is Captain of the Mermaid from January 1671/2 to April 1672, about which ship we know only that it embarked from London.<sup>14</sup>

The timeline of Captain Hamilton's service allows him to be the Thomas Hamilton recorded to have married Lydia Wing in Rhode Island [i.e. Newport], about 1669.<sup>15</sup> A marriage in Rhode Island is suggestive. Lydia's younger sister Deborah, in 1668, married William Dungan, son of Rev. Thomas Dungan of Newport, later of Pennsylvania.<sup>16</sup> This William Dungan was a grandson of Frances (Latham) Dungan Clarke, known as the 'mother of [Rhode Island] governors' – wife of Acting Governor Jeremiah Clarke, mother of Governor Walter Clarke, and mother-in-law of Governor John Cranston. Thus Lydia Wing, had connections to colonial gentry in Newport.

In 1677, Lydia (Wing) Hamilton returned to Sandwich. In 1678, the Sandwich friends (Quakers) were concerned about 'Lidia Hambolton' and wanted to speak with 'Daniel Wing to get a more convenient place for his daughter Lidia and her children.'17 In January 1679/80, Peter Gaunt and William Newland were sent to see 'Lydia Hambelton concerning her 'condition.' The next month, they return to describe her 'condition.' The next month, they return to describe her 'condition and find[ing] it very bad,' more inquiries were to follow. Lydia said she had 'no ceuse to remove from the place where she was and further said she was willing to speak with Walter Clark and Arthur Cook concerning it.'<sup>18</sup> This comment tends to confirm a former residence in Newport, where Governor Walter Clarke and Arthur Cook were prominent

United Irish exiles in America

By William Roulston

In 2013 the Foundation was commissioned by the Minsternal Advisory Group (MAGUS) – Ulster Scots Academy to undertake a study of Presbyterian United Irish esiles in America.

During the 1790s many of the trus of thousands of emigrants from Ireland to America left because of their involvement, alleged or otherwise, in the United Irishmen and 1798 Rebeilion. Many left prior to 1798, in particular during the period in 1797 in which repressive measures were taken by the government in cracking down on the activities of the United Irishmen. Others left in the alternath of the Rebellion, either fleeing for their lives or banished by the state.

For various reasons America was the obvious place for the exiles to go. The United States and its institutions were cause to go. The United States and had provided inspiration admired by the United Irishmen and had provided inspiration for their movement and its objectives. Many of the United Irish exiles already had family members in America and were aware of the opportunities that it offered.

We hear their voices in the letters they sent back to Ireland. informing family and friends of their experiences and reactions to what they found. The exiles' experiences varied considerably. Some of the exiles found life in America to be both happy and successful, while others were left disappointed and longed for home.

Some positively enflused about the system of government they were under. In 1804 John Nevin, a former United Irish leader in north Antrim, wrote from Knoxville, Tennessee, to his brother James back home, "We are now in this countery under a real Republickan government and the Best in the Woreld'. In the same year, John Campbell White, a former Belfast doctor and prominent United Irishman, wrote from his new home in Baltimore that the United States was 'n young country where civil, religious and political liberty are enjoyed to the fullest exten

Others cautioned that hard work was required for opportunities to be realised. John Caldwell, exother United Irish exile from Country Antrim who had settled in New York, warned that while 'the United States do undoubtedly promise much to while "the United States of insolution product much to Emigrants of every description", it was only "provided they are industrious & well conducted" for "no country under Heaven throws more obstacles in the way of any idle or dissolute man procuring a livelihood

The legacy of the 1798 exiles insperid long in America. That their fathers and grandfathers had fought for the United Irishmen was a continued source of pride for many Americans of Irish origin. Over 60 years after the Rebellion, a clergymun in New York would write:

I have known many individuals, in almost every condition I have known mmy inflyddais, in almost every condition in life, from the simple furner or artisan to the emineer physician, the eloquent lawyer, and the digmified minister of religion, who had more or less concern in the Irish Insurrection of 1797-98; and I have never known a mean man among them all. Coming to the United States, instinct with the love of liberty, and ardently admiring our with the love of liberty, and ardently admiring our republican institutions, they formed a fine and highly useful element in our growing population, and contributed their part to the formation of our national character.

OF THE BRANCHES OF THE HOUSE OF HAMILTON. 195

1. Elizabeth, whose personal graces and mental accomplishments are the theme of unbounded panegyric in the Memoires de Gramont, where she is styled the chief ornament of the court, worthy of the most ardent and sincere affection; nobody could boast a nobler birth, nothing could be more charming than her person. After refusing the Duke of Richmond, Jermyn, nephew of the Earl of St Albans, and Henry Howard, afterwards Duke of Norfolk, she married the dissipated Philibert, Count of Gramont, Seigneur de Semeac and de Sorroille, governor of the Pays D'Auuis and of Rochelle, Chevalier des Orders du Roy, the hero of the Memoires de Gramont, brother of Antoine, Duc de Gramont, Peer and Mareschal of France. They left England in October 1669, (letter of Charles II. to his sister, the Duchess of Orleans, recommending them, 24th October 1669. Dalrymple's Memoirs, ii. 26). She was appointed Dame du Palais to Maria Teresa of Austria, Queen of Louis XIV. Her husband died at Paris 30th January 1707, ætat. 86: she died 3d January 1708, ætat. 67. They had two daughters, Claude Charlotte de Gramont, married, 6th April 1694, to Henry Howard, Earl of Stafford; and Marie Elizabeth de Gramout, born 27th December 1667, Abbesse de St Marine de Poussey in Loraine, who died 1706.

2. Lucia, married to Sir Donogh O'Brien of Lemincagh, Bart.

3. Margaret, married in January 1688, to Matthew Ford of Coolgreeny, in the county of Wexford, and had issue.

IV. JAMES, eldest son of Sir George MAROUIS OF ABERCORN, Hamilton, is thus characterized in the Memoires de Gramont ; " The eldest of the Hamiltons was the man who, of all the court, dressed best; he was well made in his person, and possessed those happy talents which lead to fortune, and procare success in love; he was the most a siduous courtier, had the most lively wit, the most polished manners, aud the n ost punctual attention to his duty imag nable. No person danced better, nor was any one a more general lover; a merit of some account in a court entirely devoted to love and gallantry. It is not surprising that, with these qualities, he succeeded the Earl of Falmouth," [killed in the sea-fight in Southwold Bay, 2d Jine 1665,] "in the King's favour; b at it is very extraordinary that he should have experienced the same destiny, as if tl is war had been declared against merit only, and as if this sort of combat was fatal to none but such as had certain hopes of a splendid fortune."

Hc was one of the grooms of the bed-Archdall'sPeerage, v. 120. age, v. 120. clouel of a regiment of foot. His regiment being embarked on board the navy in one of the expeditions of the Duke of York against the Dutch, Colonel Hamilton had one of his legs taken of by a cannon ball, of which wound he died 6th June 1673, and was buried in Westminster Abbey under a monument erected to his memory by his uncle James, Duke of Ormond. In 1661, King Charles concluded a marriage betwixt him and Elizabeth, eldest daughter of John, Lord Colepeper of Thoresbrilliant actions, when executed by commanders whole political principles happen not to coincide with certain writers, are too often tarnished through the malignity of the historian. Indeed, when we confider the compliment paid him by the speaker of the house of commons, as already related, had we no other proof of his worth*, we trust we need not hesitate to pronounce him to have been a very brave, though, in some few instances, an unfortunate man.

BURKE, William,—was, in 1665, appointed lieutenant of the Saint Paul, and was very foon afterwards removed into the Briftol. In 1668, having filled the fame ftation, first in the Defiance, and fecondly in the Cambridge, he was promoted to the command of the Portfmouth floop. In 1671 he returned to his former rank of lieutenant, and was appointed to the Tyger. We meet with nothing farther relative to him, except that in 1674 he was made captain of the lile of Wight yacht.

HAMILTON, Thomas,—having ferved as lieutenant of the Rupert in 1666, and of the Mary in the following year, was, in 1668, promoted to be commander of the Deptford ketch, and very foon afterwards removed into the Nightingale. In 1671-2 he was appointed captain of the Mermaid; and being removed, in the courfe of the following year, into the Conftant Warwick of thirty-fix guns, a fmall fourth rate, behaved very gallantly in a very fmart encounter with a Dutch privateer, of which we have fubjoined an account †, as given in a letter written at the time. In 1673, the spirit he had manifested on the former occasion procured him to be promoted to the Mary role of fifty guns. In the account given by prince Rupert, of the engagement between the English fleet under his command, and that of the Dutch, on the 28th of May in this year, he mentions a colonel Hamilton, as having loft his leg. We have not been able to identify precifely, but we believe him to have been this gentleman, the appellation of colonel being indiferiminately applied both to officers of the navy and army, at that day*, and there being no other perfon at that time in the fervice of the fame name. He was not appointed to any other thip till the 18th of June, 1675, when he was made captain of the Margaret galley; which thip is alfo, on another occafion. called the Charles galley; the first of these appellations appears to have been a milnomer, as it is imagined there was no veffel of that name in the fervice. We find him commanding the Charles, on the Mediterranean flation. on the 28th of October 1677; at which time he captured. in company with the James, captain Canning, who was killed, a very large Algerine thip of war, after a defperate refiltance. On the 4th of March 1681-2, he was appointed to the Dragon; and, on the 23d of March 1684-5, was removed into the Kingstither. In the month of June following, having with him the Falcon frigate, he attacked and carried, almost without resistance, the castle of fought fo as not to forget to retreat when he fhould fee his opportunity, which it was not hard for him to do, we having loft great part of our rigging, and received three unlucky fhots between wind and water, and taken in fo great a quantity of water in our port-holes, that, at three o'clock in the afternoon, we found five feet feven inches water in our hold, and the gun-room full to the hatches; and that both our upper and lower tier of powder was made unferviceable, being all wet; we not having, befides, ten rounds left in all; by which means he efcaped This Caper is a fly boat of two tier of gans.

• The title of colonel appears to have been bellowed only on fuch officers as either had rank a certain time in the fervice, or had been temporary commanders, and, as they are now called, commodores of fmail fquadrons. It was also not uncommon for naval officers to hold a military command. Lord Dartmouth, for inflance, when captain Legge, was, at one and the fame time, captain of a fhip of war and colonel of a regiment of infantry. Captain thaffings of the Sandwich, who fell at the battle of La Hogue, is fliled, in the Gazette account of the action, colonel Haffings.

Ellengreg, on the western coast of Scotland. The unfortunate earl of Argyle had taken poffeffion of it a few days before, and fortified it, as well as time and circumstances would permit him, intending it as his grand magazine, and place of final retreat. Captain Hamilton's fuccefs appears to have given the decifive blow to this petty invalion, for on this occalion he not only made himfelf mafter of all the earl's ftores, fpare arms and ammunition *, but, purfuing his good fortune, took poffeifion of the three fhips which the earl brought with him, and in which only he could place his last hope of escape for himself and his followers. We meet with nothing farther relative to captain Hamilton till the month of May 1689, fome months after the revolution had taken place: he then commanded a fhip of war, whofe name we have not been able to learn, on the Irifh station, and performed a notable piece of fervice in deftroying a confiderable number of boats intended for the use of the late king James's army. This is the latest piece of information we have been able to acquire concerning him.

LONG, Robert,—after having been appointed to ferve as lieutenant of the Golden Phœnix in 1666, was promoted to the command of the Fanfan yacht in 1668.

STOUT, Robert,—ferved as lieutenant of the Refolution, and afterwards of the Revenge in 1665. In the following year he was also appointed, first to the Henry, and foon afterwards to the Lyon. In 1668 he was promoted to the command of the Roe ketch. In 1669 he returned again to his former station of lieutenant, being appointed second + of the St. David, the star board which fir John Harman had hoisted his flag as rear-ad-

† This is by no means to be taken as a degradation of rank, very frequent inflances occurring, at the period of which we are writing, of officers who had ferved as commanders of fhips feveral years, with the higheft reputation, becoming lieutenants of flag fhips. Indeed, the difference in many inflances exifted only in the term and title, the admiral being very frequently filed admiral and captain, and the officer next below him first lieutenant, answering to the station of captain of the fhip. We find these terms preferved in an Admiralty Lift of the Navy as low down as the year 1693.

LYDIA (WING) (HAMILTON) ABBOTT AND HER HOUSE IN THE WOODS by Russell A. Lovell, Jr.* Copyright, Town of Sandwich, Massachusetts

Many scattered references have enabled us to reestablish the remarkable career of Lydia Wing who lived in Sandwich in a lifestyle completely her own. Lydia was born in 1647, the second daughter of Daniel Wing, Sr. She married first about 1669 to one Thomas Hamilton, who has not been identified, and had sons Daniel (1670) and Thomas (1672) born in Rhode Island. She returned with the boys to Sandwich about 1677 and began to live in a primitive house adjacent to former Indian planting fields just south of what is now Upper Shawme Pond. This area was still held as common land by the town and had not been granted to her or anyone. Her living there alone in real poverty was a matter of embarrassment both to the Quaker Men's Monthly Meeting and to the Women's Monthly Meeting (which began to keep minutes in 1676). The Men's Meeting Record in 1678 includes:

"Friends considering the state and condition of Lidia Hambolton did desire that Peter Gaunt and William Gifford shold (sic) speak to Daniel Wing to get a more convenient place for his daughter Lidia and her children."

They offered to find her a better place in 1679, but her answer to the Men's Meeting in 1680

"was that she saw no cause to remove from the place where she was."

This answer was "dissatisfaction" to the Men's Meeting. The Women's Meeting lists gifts to Lidia Hambolton of shoes (1677), corn (1680), wool (1681), and cash (1683). Doubtless her Wing relatives provided labor and supplies regularly.

About 1684 she married another otherwise unidentified man named John Abbott, not a Sandwich resident. In early 1685 she suffered a serious illness, and the Town Meeting voted a payment to Dr. John Fuller of Barnstable, chirurgeon, of £ 10 in silver money (a large sum) "for care of Lidia Habbott." It also voted £ 1 in silver to two Sandwich ladies (not Quakers) "for keeping Lidia Habbott."

The Abbotts had a daughter Lydia born about 1687, and at last in 1688 the town gave three acres to John Abbott for his and his wife's improvement during their lifetimes. In 1689 grants were made nearby to Daniel Wing, Jr., and to John Tobey. When these lands were actually laid out in 1691 both refer to "the cartway that leadeth to John Abbott's."

Daniel Wing, Sr., died in 1698 leaving £ 5 to his daughter Lidia "Abit." Daniel Senior lived at the original Wing homestead at what is now 8 Morse Road, Sandwich, about one mile east of where Lidia lived in the woods. In 1702 the Women's Meeting gave Lidia wool and deplored her continuing "low estate." The last known reference to "Lidy Abit" is as a witness to a Quaker wedding in 1704. Her two Hamilton sons had departed for Chatham in 1690 where they are found in town records. The daughter, Lydia, became engaged to Jonathan Gifford, son of the patriarch William Gifford. The women's Meeting inquired into her clearness for marriage and "found nothing to hinder." In his 1975 GIFFORD article in The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, MacLean W. McLean says Lydia "has not been identified," probably because he did not have access to the Women's Meeting Minutes nor the Sandwich Proprietors' Records.

In 1709 the town granted to John Abbott ten acres of land adjacent to the site "where his dwelling house now stands," with no reference to a wife. This grant, as with that of the houselot, was for his lifetime only. A few hundred yards to the west of Abbott's home there was now a handsome colonial house begun in 1691 by Daniel Wing, Jr., Abbott's brother-in-law.

Abbott must have died in 1714 when his grants were declared extinct. No record has been found of a reissue of the Abbott land, but it was surrounded by Wing lands. Daniel, Jr., and his sons Samuel and Zaccheus assembled a large acreage as a family center with three houses-the improved home of Lydia, which became know as the Orchard House (the old planting fields having become an orchard where later some forty varieties of apples were grown), the main house for two families, with two kitchens and two chimneys (now the Heritage Plantation office), and the nearby colonial house built by the Foster family in 1696, which was purchased by Zaccheus Wing in 1745.

The Orchard House was occupied by Samuel Wing (1690-1732) and his wife and six children. Samuel died suddenly without leaving a will, so that the Probate Court granted title to all his property collectively to his six children, his widow having remarried. The joint ownership by the six heirs (all of whom had married and were living outside Sandwich) made it nearly impossible to market a share, but Zaccheus was determined to keep the Orchard House and its land in the local family. Accordingly, between 1747 and 1752 Zaccheus Wing bought at prices substantially over assessed value the six shares (one for 2/7, the other five for 1/7 each) of the whole property. These deeds refer only to sevenths of the total property of Samuel, not to any details as to the house or bounds. (The six unusual deeds survived as a set and in 1976 were donated with other manuscripts to the New England Historic Genealogical Society.)

Zaccheus died in 1784, and the Orchard House after periods of rental and non-use was unsentimentally sold in 1794 for removal. It was bought and re-erected by Elisha and Lemuel Pope as an ell to the large new house they were building at 14/16 Grove Street in Sandwich. Both house and ell are there today. At the time of re-erection of this ell, the Sandwich Quaker community considered that it might have been the house of the matriarch, Deborah Wing, and a group of Wing descendants at a Quarterly Meeting in Sandwich went to the building and were given permission to hold a memorial service in the unfinished ell. The dramatic and unconventional life of the rebel Lydia seems to have been quickly forgotten.

Today the beautiful Wing farm is the landscaped property of the Heritage Plantation, and Abbott's Orchard is the training lawn around the Military Museum there.
